Art Gallery of Guelph announces 2021 Middlebrook Prize for Young Canadian Curators Call for Submissions

For Immediate Release
December 1, 2020

The Art Gallery of Guelph (AGG) announces the call for submissions for the 2021 Middlebrook Prize for Young Canadian Curators. Founded in 2012, the Middlebrook Prize is awarded annually to an emerging Canadian curator who is under 30 with the aim to foster social innovation and curatorial excellence in Canada. Hosted and administered by the Art Gallery of Guelph, the winner is selected by a jury of arts leaders and receives a $5,000 honorarium and mentorship in the development of an exhibition at the Art Gallery of Guelph. Submissions will be accepted until January 15, 2021 at 5 pm.

By supporting and mobilizing Canadian creative talent, the Middlebrook Prize aims to inspire positive social change in an era of ongoing and unprecedented economic, environmental, social, and cultural challenges. “Awarded each year now for almost a decade, the impact the Middlebrook Prize has had for both the applicants and the wider cultural sector is clear,” says AGG Director Shauna McCabe, “Supporting young professionals at a critical point in their careers, the recipients are among the country’s best and brightest emerging curators with a clear sense of the public role and transformative potential of the arts.”

The 2021 Middlebrook Prize jury is composed of Nicole Caruth (Independent curator and cultural strategist), Sally Frater (Curator of Contemporary Art, Art Gallery of Guelph), and Denise Ryner (Director/Curator, Or Gallery and Associate Curator, Haus der Kulturen der Welt, Berlin).
